

ADVANCE DIRECTIVES

A Guide to Maryland Law on Health Care Decisions
(Forms Included)

State of Maryland Office of the Attorney General

J. Joseph Curran, Jr.
Attorney General

Dear Fellow Marylander:

I am pleased to send you the material that you requested about advance directives. The enclosed forms are optional; you can use them if you want or use others, which are just as valid legally. If you have any legal questions about your personal situation, you should consult your own lawyer. If you decide to make an advance directive, be sure to talk about it with your family and your doctor. The conversation is just as important as the document. A copy of any advance directive should be put in your medical records. Also make sure that, if you go into a hospital, you bring a copy. Please do not return completed forms to this office.

Life-threatening illness is a difficult subject to deal with. If you plan now, however, your choices can be respected and you can relieve at least some of the burden from your loved ones in the future. You may also use an advance directive to make an organ donation.

If you want information about Emergency Medical Services (EMS) Palliative Care/Do Not Resuscitate (DNR) Orders, please contact the Maryland Institute for Emergency Medical Services Systems (MIEMSS) directly at (410) 706-4367. An EMS/DNR Order is a physician's instruction to emergency medical personnel (911 responders) to provide comfort care instead of resuscitation.

I hope that this information is helpful to you. I regret that overwhelming demand limits us to supplying one set of forms to each requester. But please feel free to make as many copies as you wish. You can also get these forms on the Internet at the following address: www.oag.state.md.us/HealthPol/index.htm.

HEALTH CARE PLANNING USING ADVANCE DIRECTIVES

Optional Forms Included

Your Right To Decide

Adults can decide for themselves whether they want medical treatment. This right to decide – to say yes or no to proposed treatment – applies to treatments that extend life, like a breathing machine or a feeding tube. Tragically, accident or illness can take away a person's ability to make health care decisions. But decisions still have to be made. If you cannot do so, someone else will. These decisions should reflect your own values and priorities.

A Maryland law called the Health Care Decisions Act says that you can do health care planning, through “advance directives.” An advance directive can be used to name a health care agent. This is someone you trust to make health care decisions for you. An advance directive can also be used to say what your treatment preferences are, especially about treatments that might be used to sustain your life.

The Health Care Decisions Act sets out two optional forms, which are included with this pamphlet. The shorter one is titled “Living Will.” The longer one is titled “Advance Directive,” and it has two parts, Part A and Part B. This pamphlet will explain how to use them. These forms are intended to be guides. You may complete all of a form, or only the parts you want to use. You are not required by law to use these forms. Different forms, written the way you want, may also be used. For example, one widely praised form, called Five Wishes, is available from the nonprofit organization Aging With Dignity. You can get information about that document from the Internet at www.agingwithdignity.org or write to: Aging with Dignity, P.O. Box 1661, Tallahassee, FL 32302.

These optional forms can be filled out without going to a lawyer. But if there is anything you do not understand, you might want to talk with a lawyer. You can also ask your doctor to explain the medical issues. You should tell your doctor that you made an advance directive and give your doctor a copy.

You need two witnesses to your signature on these forms. Nearly any adult can be a witness. If you name a health care agent, though, that person may not be a witness. Also, one of the witnesses must be a person who would not financially benefit by your death or handle your estate. You do not need to have the form notarized.

Once you make an advance directive, it remains in effect unless you revoke it. It does not expire. You should review what you've done once in a while. Things might change in your life, or your attitudes might change. You are free to amend or revoke an advance directive at any time. Tell your doctor and anyone else who has a copy of your advance directive if you amend it or revoke it.

If you made an advance directive in another state, it is legally valid in Maryland. Also, if you have a Maryland living will or a durable power of attorney for health care prepared before October 1, 1993, that document is still valid. You might want to review these documents to see if you prefer to make a new advance directive instead.

Health Care Agents

You can name anyone you want (except, in general, someone who works for a health care facility where you are receiving care) to be your health care agent. To name a health care agent, use Part A of the advance directive form. Your agent will speak for you and make decisions based on what you would want done or your best interests. You decide how much power your agent will have to make health care decisions. You can also decide when you want your agent to have this power – right away, or only after your doctors agree that you are not able to decide for yourself.

You can pick a family member as a health care agent, but you don't have to. Remember, your agent will have the power to make important treatment decisions, even if other people close to you might urge a different decision. Choose the person best qualified to be your health care agent. Also, consider picking a back-up agent, in case your first choice isn't available when needed. Don't pick someone without telling the person. Make sure that the person you pick understands what's most important to you. When the time comes for decisions, your health care agent should do what you would want.

The forms included with this pamphlet do not give anyone power to handle your money. There isn't a standard form we can send. Talk to your lawyer about planning for financial issues in case of incapacity.

Health Care Instructions

You also have the right to use an advance directive to say what you want about future treatment issues. If you both name a health care agent and make decisions about treatment in an advance directive, your agent will be bound by whatever decisions you make unless you say otherwise.

If you want, you can make a limited kind of advance directive called a living will. A living will lets you decide about life-sustaining procedures in two situations: death from a terminal condition is imminent despite the application of life-sustaining procedures, and a condition of permanent unconsciousness called a persistent vegetative state.

You also have the right to give broader health care instructions by using Part B of the longer form. Part B of the advance directive lets you decide about life-sustaining procedures in three situations: terminal condition, persistent vegetative state, and end-stage condition. An end-stage condition is an advanced, progressive, and incurable condition resulting in complete physical dependency. One example is advanced Alzheimer's disease. You can also use Part B of the advance directive to make health care decisions in addition to those dealing with life-sustaining procedures. If you fill out Part B, you should not fill out the living will form too.

Both the living will form and Part B let you decide separately, if you want, about artificially supplied nutrition and hydration, often called "tube feeding." Also, women who fill out either form can say whether pregnancy is to have any effect on their treatment decisions.

Did You Remember To ...

- Fill out, sign, and have witnessed Part A of the advance directive if you want to name a health care agent?
- Name a back-up agent in case your first choice as health care agent is not available when needed?
- Talk to your agent and back-up agent about your values and priorities, and decide whether that's enough guidance or whether you also want to make specific health care decisions that your agent must follow?
- Fill out (choosing carefully among alternatives), sign, and have witnessed either a living will or the broader Part B of the advance directive, but only if you want to make specific decisions?
- Make sure your health care agent (if you named one), your family, and your doctor know about your advance care planning?
- Give a copy of your advance directive to your health care agent, family members, doctor, and hospital or nursing home if you are a patient there?

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS ABOUT ADVANCE DIRECTIVES IN MARYLAND

- 1. Must I use any particular form?
No. Optional forms are provided, but you may change them or use different forms altogether. Of course, no health care provider may deny you care simply because you decided not to fill out a form.
- 2. Who can be picked as a health care agent?
Anyone who is 18 or older except, in general, an owner, operator, or employee of a health care facility where a patient is receiving care.
- 3. Who can witness an advance directive?
Two witnesses are needed. Generally, any competent adult can be a witness, including your doctor or other health care provider (but be aware that some facilities have a policy against their employees serving as witnesses). If you name a health care agent, that person cannot be a witness for any of your advance directives. Also, one of the two witnesses must be someone who (i) will not receive money or property from your estate and (ii) who is not the one you have named to handle your estate after your death.
- 4. Do the forms have to be notarized?
No, but if you travel frequently to another state, check with a knowledgeable lawyer to see if that state requires notarization.
- 5. Do any of these documents deal with financial matters?
No. If you want to plan for financial matters, talk with your lawyer.
- 6. When using these forms to make a decision, how do I show the choices that I have made?
Write your initials next to the statement that says what you want. Don't use checkmarks or X's. Then draw lines all the way through other statements that do not say what you want. Please don't make inconsistent choices. For example, if you initial any or all of items 1, 2, and 3 on Part B of the advance directive, do not initial item 5. Draw lines through it instead. Also, be very careful about item 4. Draw lines through it if you want to make sure that you get pain relief medication.
- 7. Should I fill out both the living will form and the advance directive form?
It depends on what you want to do. If all you want to do is name a health care agent, just fill out Part A of the advance directive. If you want to give treatment instructions, fill out either the living will form or Part B of the advance directive (not both). The living will form lets you decide about life-sustaining procedures in the event of terminal condition or persistent vegetative state. Part B lets you decide about life-sustaining procedures not only in the event of terminal condition or persistent vegetative state but also “end-stage condition.” Part B also lets you make health care decisions that deal with situations other than life-sustaining procedures. Be aware that, if you name a health care agent and give treatment instructions, the agent will be bound by your decisions unless you say otherwise.

8. Are these forms valid in another state?

It depends on the law of the other state. Most states will honor an advance directive made somewhere else.

9. To whom should I give copies of my advance directive?

Give copies to your doctor, your health care agent if you name one, hospital or nursing home if you will be staying there, and family members or friends who should know of your wishes.

10. Does the federal law on medical records privacy (HIPAA) require special language about my health care agent?

Under HIPAA, a health care agent is a “personal representative” who can get access to your medical records. In Part A of the advance directive, at the beginning of item 2A, you might want to write in these words: “As my personal representative,”

11. If I have an advance directive, do I also need an Emergency Medical Services Palliative Care/Do Not Resuscitate Order?

Yes. If you don't want ambulance personnel to try to resuscitate you in the event of cardiac or respiratory arrest, you must have an EMS Palliative Care/DNR Order signed by your private physician.

12. Does the EMS Palliative Care/DNR Order have to be in a particular form?

Yes. Ambulance personnel have very little time to evaluate the situation and act appropriately. So, it is not practical to ask them to interpret documents that may vary in form and content. Instead, a standardized order form has been developed. Have your doctor or health care facility contact the Maryland Institute for Emergency Medical Services System (MIEMSS) at (410) 706-4367 to obtain information on EMS Palliative Care/DNR Orders.

13. Can I use an advance directive to make an organ donation?

Yes. A special form for that purpose is included.
